

Rhian Benson, Words Hurt Too

You forgot to draw the line
That divide we understood
And the thoughts that you have spoken
Have broken my world of you

You only worry about your actions
But words hurt too
Never worry about reactions
But words hurt too

You forgot to draw the line
A moment was it all it took
And the silence paints a picture
Now I can't bear to look

You only worry about your actions
But words hurt too
Never worry about reactions
But words hurt too

I think about you all the time
I wonder how we could have come to this
I remember everything was fine
There's so much that I miss about you

You only worry about your actions
But words hurt too

You only worry about, worry about
Worry about your actions
And never worry about, worry about
Worry about reactions
You only worry about, worry about
Worry about your actions
And never worry about, worry about
Worry about reactions

It's just too much for me to bear