

Richard John Thompson, To The Ones Who Care

You said you'd never call out my name
Well I know now
I said I'd never show you my pain
But it shows now

You said you'd never call me again
But I hope now
You said you'd never hand me the blame
But I'll cope now

She left a note pinned onto my door at home
As the rain crashed down
It said call me when you're all alone

To the ones who care
She said she'd still be here tomorrow
To the ones who care
She said she's not a one for sorrow

She said she'd always stand by my side
Well I know what I've lost now
She said in me you can always confide
But at what cost now

She left a note pinned onto my door at home
As the rain crashed down
It said call me when you're all alone

To the ones who care
She said she'd still be here tomorrow
To the ones who care
She said she's not a one for sorrow

To the ones who care
She said she'd still be here tomorrow
To the ones who care
She said she's not a one for sorrow
