Robbie Williams, King Of Bloke

Speak so loud I cant hear what you say Except for the occassional word So fates a sentimental side It bothers me No longer king of bloke and bird

All of my life Searching hard Down in the wilds Of love

Summon me now Summon my life away Summon me onto another day A hand through the clouds Keeps knocking me down It's no less than I deserve They built museums I dont visit them I've made enough trouble of my own

Into the night Searching hard Look for the light Of love

Summon me now Summon my life away Summon me on to another day Summon the evening winter waves of falling down again I sing from the chaos in my heart My heart

Then comes the evening That makes life worth living Shoving the shoes out in the light She walks in I can hear her