

Robert Earl Keen, Swervin' In The Lane

Sometimes I don't know what I'm doing
Sometimes all my days are filled with rain
As I travel down life's highway, things ain't going my way
Cause there's always someone swervin' in the lane

You keep a swervin' in the lane and it's causing' lots of danger
I'm a honkin' on my horn, I'm a shooting you the finger
I keep a switchin' on my bright lights, but you're just too dim to know
When you're swervin' on life's highway, you're running someone off the road

The day you drove away I thought I never Could love another, but how else could I feel?
Now when you run into me, I can't believe I could not see you
All tanked up, and no one's at the wheel

You keep a swervin' in the lane and it's causin' lots of danger
I'm a cussin' out your name, I'm a shooting you the finger
I keep a switchin' on my bright lights, but you're just too dim to know
When you're swervin' on life's highway, you're running someone off the road

Now, and when, and if I ever finally pass you
Oh when I do, and if I'm still alive
I won't never see you, cause I'm rippin' out my rear-view
And I'm shifting it on in to overdrive

You keep swervin' in the lane, and it's causin' lots of danger
I'm a stompin' on the foot-feed, I'm a shooting you the finger
I keep a switchin' on my bright lights, but you're just too dim to know
When you're swervin' on life's highway, you're running someone off the road
