Robert Pollard, Release The Sunbird

They will send for you someday Release the sunbird Wheel up to you and drive you home And below it was home then To keep us so grounded Oh, and I know it's ugly and wrong

When she calls you You'll be crying Inside dying alone When she keeps you You can't kiss her

And you will miss her When she's gone

Falling in an arc from an open wrist And time can only free you When she's gone She is dead She is dead And now she's dead!