

Robin Trower, If You Really Want To Find Love

If you really want to find love

Is your life just a stolen dream
Full of things that will not last
Is your mind now a constant stream
A broken fragment from the past

Why don't you try to break a way
Why don't you break away

If you really want to find love
Take it from the start
If you really want to find love
Look into your own heart

Possessions are a wasted love
Giving no love in return.
To spend your life trying to earn enough
Proves that you have much to learn.

Nobody else is keeping score
No one is keeping score
Oh no

If you really want to find love
Take it from the start
If you really want to find love
Look into your own heart

Why don't you try to break away
Why don't you break away

If you really want to find love
Take it from the start
If you really want to find love
Look into your own heart

If you really want to find love
Take it from the start
If you really want to find love
Look into your own heart
