

Roger Hodgson, You Make Me Love You

Alright, you make me love you
It's alright, you make me love you
I said alright, you make me love you
It's alright, you make me love you

When the winter wind in a-blowing'
Well you never know where it's goin'
For the skies are dark and the clouds are rollin' in
You can feel your heart is getting older
You can feel the world is getting colder
And it feels so good just to have you next to me

Oh baby alright, I think I love you
It's alright, you make me love you
Oh I said alright, I think I love you
It's alright, you make me love you

Now the days are all getting shorter
They seem to slip away like water
Oh the land is cold and the night is closing in
But you're always there when I need you
When it feels the world is against you
Oh it feels so good with you standing next to me

Oh baby alright I think I love you
I said alright, I think I need you
Oh babe it's alright I think I want you
I think I need you
Oh babe it's alright
Oh babe it's alright
Now that you're here

Oh it's an icy wind that's a-blowin'
And you never know just where it's goin'
But it feels so good when you're curled up close to me
Oh baby alright I think I love you
It's alright you make me love you
I said it's alright I think I need you
It's alright you make me love you...
