

Rose Maddox, Conscience I'm Guilty

Oh conscience don't ever let me do that again
Now I'm driving home slowly my spirit's so low
I cheated on him again and why I'll never know
I hope I don't look too guilty when he let me in
Oh conscience don't ever let me do that again
Oh conscience I'm guilty and I must confess
When he kissed me I knew I love the other one best
I've been out with an old friend who's heart's full of sin
Oh conscience don't ever let me do that again
[steel]
Between right and wrong love and desire
This game that I'm playing more dangers than fire
I might talk in my sleep or be caught by his friend
Oh conscience don't ever let me do that again
Oh conscience I'm guilty...
Oh conscience don't ever let me do that again
