

Roy Drusky, After You Turn Out Your Light

After you're alone at night who do you think of After you turn out your light who do you dream of Could it be that you long to hold another time
Are you still loving me after you turn out your light
You show that you love me by things that you do
But do you still love me when I'm not with you
What goes through your mind when I'm not in sight
Are you still loving me after you turn out your light
What goes through your mind...
