Royksopp, True To Life

When I walk up to your door When I walk into your room and open windows Can you hold it in your hand Can you make me understand the tension, the pressure And I know just it means to be left out all alone I got it just like that I wanna go right back again I wanna give you everything Troubled eyes; equipment of my heart An all-the-time-reflecting-on-why heart Funny how the gamegot all twisted Like day and night never existed Could I be more true to life? Tell me how did I become half my real self Wanna reach and touch the skies Wanna end the lonely nights The breathless hours And I know just what it means to be left out all alone I got it just like that I wanna go right back again I wanna give you everything