

Russell Crowe & 30 Odd Foot Of Grunts, Painted

(Crowe, Wilkins, Lani)

I passed on the painted veil
Somerset, some other time and love
Weighed without intention
And that caught her eye
She knew what I was thinking of
I'm not that hard to find

When I wish of her
I wish her beneath my gaze
And if I drink of her it will be all my days
And when she told me she was a trinket
I forgot to be amazed
I should have been amazed

Sand in the hallway
The glisten of her laugh
I've never found it easier to spend my days
My soul sings the prowler's nocturne
From deep down within this cage
We have too many last nights in our lives
Too many desperate hours
Whispering goodbyes
And baby the earth shook
The last time I heard you cry

Yes you loved me
Gently caressed my face
Not some little sorcery
Some simple twist of fate
I was hundreds of feet away
I should have been amazed
I should have been amazed
