

RY X, Your Love

I couldn't help the feelings cornered in the fading light underneath your weight here falling in your haunted eyes your love your love your love your love your love your love why you hiding now
your love your love your love your love your love your love
we're running out of time you in all the places holding me against your tide underneath the table folding as i caught your eye
your love your love your love your love your love your love
why you hiding now
your love your love your love your love your love your love
we're running out of time
your love your love your love your love your love your love what your hiding from
your love your love your love your love your love your love
we're running out of time
we're running out of time
your love your love your love your love your love your love
your love your love your love your love your love your love