

Ryan Shupe & The RubberBand, Rain Falls Down

I knew down deep inside that something wasn't right
Enough to grip my heart and wake me in the night
But the weather looked so good in the morning
That I failed to heed the flash flood warning
And the rain falls down and I'm standing here with no umbrella again
And the rain falls down and I'm standing here with no umbrella
The rain falls down, the rain falls down
The first flash blinded me and caught me by surprise
Until the repercussion hit and opened up my eyes
Sometimes lightning strikes without rhyme or reason
And when it rains it pours in monsoon season
And the rain falls down and I'm standing here with no umbrella again
And the rain falls down and I'm standing here with no umbrella again
The rain falls down, the rain falls down
Sometimes the knife runs deeper than the blade
Sometimes the bed's still messy when it's made
When Cinderella found the writer had appended
What did she do when the fairy tale had ended
And the rain falls down and I'm standing here with no umbrella again
And the rain falls down and I'm standing here with no umbrella
The rain falls down, the rain falls down
