

RyanDan, The Face

Traveller of the great divides
Vagrant on a path to life

Everyday feels a little closer
To where it is that you're headed for
Given to a hope of so much more

For everytime you fall apart
There'll be a soul to guide your journey
But if you choose to turn away
There in the mirror you'll see my face
You'll see my face

Think you're on this road alone
Looking for a truth untold

Many times you've been close to breaking
Giving up and letting go
Something inside says it's not over

For everytime you fall apart
There'll be a soul to guide your journey
But if you choose to turn away
There in the mirror you'll see my face

And when the world crowds your space
Remember days when noise was silent
No empty vows, loveless displays
Just a sense of knowing you'd see my face
You'll see my face