

Saga, Rising

Rising

We remember things that have been said
From the fire that once was is not dead
From the ashes, flames will rise again
And the light will guide our people on their way

We're rising again, don't get in our way
We're rising again, we're gonna have our day

We remember comrades from the past
The foundations that they built are going to last
Their sacrifices will not be in vain
But what has been, can be so once again

Once our mighty legions have awoken
They say the truth in words that were once spoken
Once our people see through all the lies
A bright new day shall arise, rise

Believe it!