

Sally Oldfield, Marlene

Oldfield

His eyes follow her as she moves across the room

Marlene, my love, you were born too soon

Running his fingers through her hair

Across her face to her lips so fine

He said, "Another place, another time, you could be mine"

Marlene, if I could have you here like that

Let one dream in my life come true

But the hands of time just won't turn back

So what remains is just my dream

And I wish you all the best Marlene

If he only had the chance to be in her movie scene

He would show her how to love, Marlene,

He would be her leading man in the truest love story

Anyone in the world had seen

It's the flower in her soul

In her eyes she holds

And she'll always be his queen

Marlene, if I could have you here like that

Let one dream in my life come true

But the hands of time just won't turn back

So what remains is just my dream

And I wish you all the best

Marlene if I could have you here like that

Let one dream in my life come true

But the hands of time just won't turn back

So what remains is just my dream

And I wish you all the best Marlene
