

Sally Oldfield, Two Different Drummers

I have loved you for so long
Loving one familiar face
I never thought that someone new could ever take your place
Now different feelings come to me, confusion in my mind
A different rhythm, a different mood
Is pulling me out of time
Two different drummers in one song
Two different hearts that beat as one
My passion burns, tearing me apart
Two different lovers playing one song in my heart
You and I have had a love that it seemed so deep and strong
What we had was what we wanted, nothing could go wrong
Then one day a stranger came showed me a different game
And I don't know which way to turn, I need you both the same
Two different drummers in one song
Two different hearts that beat as one
My passion burns, tearing me apart
Two different lovers in my heart
Can't stand the pain, I know you're sad
Don't cry my love, one day you'll understand there can be
Two different drummers in one song
Two different hearts that beat as one
My passion burns, tearing me apart
Two different lovers playing one song in my heart
Two different drummers in one song
Two different hearts that beat as one
My passion burns, tearing me apart
Two different lovers playing one song in my heart