Sarah Masen, Home

I'd like to sleep for one more hour or two Hour or two You look like dad when he slept really hard Through everything Now everything's gold and like Christmas

Home This all feels so familiar Home Are we really getting older Home I wish I could remember

That little hill seemed like a mountain then We were shorter then And we'd wonder just how it was going to be When here we are And it's not too bad Quite good in fact

We are Home You are like poetry and feathers Home The way you button up your sweater Home The one you chose for colder weather

Home This all feels so familiar Home Are we really getting older Home I wish I could remember everything cool

I'd like to sleep for one more hour or two Hour or two
