Sasha, Kissing My Love

Originally by Bill Withers

When I'm kissing my love, I can hear a thump thumping in my head When I'm kissing my love I close my eyes and see a pretty city with a thousand flower beds

I can hear the angels sing, Songs that only angels sing She's such a pretty thing and my heart just a-thumping and a-skipping When I'm kissing my love

When I'm kissing my love, I feel the blood pump-pumping in my veins When I'm kissing my love She's such a tender sender with a sweet young frame.

She's so good at what she does, All she wants to do is kiss and hug, She's got me in love And I can feel my heart just a-thumping and a skipping When I'm kissing my love

When I'm kissing my love, I feel the blood pump-pumping in my veins When I'm kissing my love She's such a tender sender with a sweet young frame.

She's so good at what she does, All she wants to do is kiss and hug, She's got me in love And I can feel my heart just a-thumping and a skipping When I'm kissing my love
