

Saves The Day, Seeing It This Way

I never thought I could watch someone come apart from insides to outsides every day I see strings fall loose every day I see hope lost-with all this complicated I can't even get pass the thought of thinking and wonder whether help or understanding rings truer and I don't know how to do anything anymore for you but I know that you should stop this world spinning right this minute and take a look from something else higher up and then you could realize just how broken your aim really is so why don't you ask yourself to show up sometime? why don't you stand up tall and kick yourself in the mouth to remember and to get that burn back and scorch your stomach and bleed that passion lost and don't forget what picked you up and don't forget to think this time.