

Savoy, You Should've Told Me

In the morning
And the air so still
Cars are passing
Beneath my windowsill
Dusty sidewalks, in the afternoon
Coastal mountains, I will be there soon
You should have told me

I should have told you, that the dam won't hold
I should have called you, but the line went cold
I should have held you in my arms each night
I should've told you when the time was right
Seasons will turn
Never will I learn
Moments will pass
I always think they'll last
You should have told me.

I should have told you, when I had the chance
I should have told you, the way I planned
Dusy sidewalks in the afternoon,
Coastal mountains, I will be there soon.
You should have told me
Seasons will turn
Never will I learn
Moments will pass
I always think they'll last

You should have told me
I should have told you
