

Scapegoat Wax, Both My Friends

My autograph isn't worth a paper bag.
It's not me you're looking for.
It's nothing more.

Do you ever smile in pain?
Like when a needle breaks your vein.
When everything is rushing to the shore.

All I have is my radio.
And both my friends are scared.
All I have are these mirrors that just stare.

I made you sing.
Like you never thought you'd scream.
Everything is in key now let me soar.

Do you ever smile in pain?
Like when a razor breaks your vein.
When everything is rushing to the floor.

All I have is my radio.
And both my friends are scared.
All I have are these mirrors that just stare.

You said you loved everything.
You said the blue skies would sing.
You said I made you complete.
But baby there's only half of me.

All I have is my radio.
And both my friends are scared.
All I have are these mirrors that just stare.

All I have is my radio.
And both my friends are scared.
All I have are these mirrors that just stare.

Do you ever smile in pain?
Do you ever smile in pain?
