Scott Krippayne, You Are Still God

I've prayed but still don't have answers At least none I'm able to see I've tried to rest in not knowing But not knowing's a hard place to be But as I return to Your pages The words breathe new life to my soul I see You at work through the ages And know that You're still in control

CHORUS:

You are still God You have created the land and the sea May we applaud And sing to the wonder of Your majesty The wind will still blow We won't always know Why seasons of life are so hard But You are still God

Help me have faith in the knowledge
That You're greater than what we go through
And when I reside in the valleys
Help me keep trusting in You
The how and the when You are moving
Were not meant for me to decide
Again and again You are proving
You're there at just the right time
