

Self Against City, Even The Strong Won't Survive

Something's wrong
Something I, I, I can't put my finger on
Breathe in, breathe out
Until the feeling's gone
But the nights keep getting colder
And the days all feel the same

Too much, too much, too much is never enough
I can't, I can't, can't seem to get what I want
I know it's my fault
But if we only live once, who's to tell me I'm wrong
To want the best for myself
To want something else
And all I want I see in

Whoa, whoa, whoa, whoa

Something's wrong
Something I, I, I can't put my finger on

Spiraling down
Control is fading out
But I seem to love affliction
Throw myself right overboard

Too much, too much, too much is never enough
I can't, I can't, can't seem to get what I want
I know it's my fault
But if we only live once, who's to tell me

Too much, too much, too much is never enough
I can't, I can't, can't seem to get what I want
I know it's my fault
But if we only live once, who's to tell me I'm wrong
To want the best for myself
To want something else
And all I want I see in

Whoa, whoa, whoa, whoa
