

Seven Ender, Black Hair Goodbye

She used to wear these shoes
That made it unable
To just get up and go

But when it was time for her
To leave
Each lace
Through each rivet
Took forever

I did my best to write you
The words that would explain
The reasons I'm lacking to leave you

Now I'm screaming at myself
Because I'm pissed that I am lonely
Forget you,
Forget you,
I want to forget you

Part of my dreams are to
Push on without you
But I am living in the paint
We laid together

And I wanna be sure that
Well you are the right one
But driving now doesn't seem quite right
Without you
Without you

I'm scared to hear your voice
My courage is fragile
My heart is paper thin

And I'll try my best
To stand my ground
Even though I wanna believe you

I'm dying
For your call
Why do I want so bad to feel you?

Part of my dreams are to
Push on without you
But I am living in the paint
We laid together oh

And I wanna be sure that
Well you are the right one
But driving now doesn't seem quite right
Without you
Without you

I'm dying
(on my own)
I'm leaving
(on my own)
I'm lying
(on my own)
Well everything's better but nothing is better

I'm dying
(on my own)

I'm leaving
(on my own)
I'm lying
(on my own)
Well everything's better but nothing is better

She used to wear these shoes
Where each lace
Through each
Rivet took forever