Seven Nations, Canadee I O

Well, it's all of a fair and handsome girl She's all in her tender years She fell in love with a sailor boy, It's true she loved him well For to go off to sea with him Like she did not know how She longed to see that seaport town Of Canadee-i-o (Your color will be blue) (Your color will be blue) So she bargained with a young sailor boy Sold for a piece of gold Straightaway then he led her down All down into the hold Sayin', "I'll dress you up in sailor's clothes Your jacket shall be blue You'll see that seaport town Of Canadee-i-o (Your color will be blue) (Your color will be blue) Now, when the other sailors heard the news Well, they fell into a rage And with all the ship's company They were willing to engage Saying, & guot; We'll tie her hands and feet, my boys Overboard we'll throw her She'll never see that seaport town Called Canadee-i-o (Your color will be blue) (Your color will be blue) Now, when the captain he heard the news Well, he too fell in a rage And with the whole ship's company He was willing to engage Sayin', "She'll stay in sailor's clothes Her color shall be blue She'll see that seaport town Called Canadee-i-o (Your color will be blue) (Your color will be blue) Now, when they sailed down to Canada Scarcely 'bout half a year She's married this bold captain Who called her his dear She's dressed in silks and satins now She cuts a gallant show Finest of the ladies Down in Canadee-i-o (Your color will be blue) (Your color will be blue) Come, all you fair and tender girls Wheresoever you may be I'd have you to follow your own true love When he goes out on the sea For if the sailors prove false to you Well, the captain, he might prove true You'll see the honor that I have gained By the wearing of the blue