

Seven Nations, Leave It

I'm leaving town
You know I'd hate to be around when my plane kisses the ground this time I'll leave it I'd hate you to see the weaker side of me see me fall down on my knees
this time I'll leave it

Every little part of you that aches every little piece of me that breaks every time I see that face I'm leaving every time you tremble time stand still every time I say I won't I will every time i see that face I'm leaving

Denied in me
I've become an effigy of the man I used to be
this time I'll leave it I feel your need without I would not be complete A simple tragedy
this time I'll leave it

Every little piece of you that breaks every little part of me that aches every time I see your face I'm leaving every extra minute's my mistake every little breath of yours I take every time i see that face I'm leaving

Now I'm living on the second floor Now I'm missing you more than I ever did before

Every little part of you that aches
every little piece of me that breaks
every time I see that face
I'm leaving
every time you whisper I want more every time I'm hanging from your door every time I kiss your face
I'm leaving

Now I must say more than I could never dream of ever or take away the part of you I'm leaving
Now I think I should consider there could never be another chance for me to make you see I'm leaving
