

Seven Nations, This Season

Daniel closed his eyes
As if it didn't happen
And he wondered why at everytime this season
Feel it in the air
See it in the lightning
And he wondered why
it always felt so frightening

I will remember you
In this way
As sure as the night divides the day
As sure as the sun goes down.

Then he looked at me
His eyes were full of reason
And he spoke of how
She never stopped to listen

When she got the news
She wrecked the room in anger
She never looked at me
She telephoned the doctor

I will remember you
In this way
As sure as the night divides the day
As sure as the sun goes down.

It raced on and on
His question fell
Like rain on the window
Like I never will
His face touched the glass
His fingers traced
The path of the water
The lines on his face

I will remember you
In this way
As sure as the night divides the day
As sure as the sun goes down.

The sun goes down

The sun goes down

The sun goes down
