Seven Nations, This Season

Daniel closed his eyes
As if it didn't happen
And he wondered why at everytime this season
Feel it in the air
See it in the lightning
And he wondered why
it always felt so frightning

I will remember you In this way As sure as the night divides the day As sure as the sun goes down.

Then he looked at me His eyes were full of reason And he spoke of how She never stopped to listen

When she got the news She wrecked the room in anger She never looked at me She telephoned the doctor

I will remember you In this way As sure as the night divides the day As sure as the sun goes down.

It raced on and on
His question fell
Like rain on the window
Like I never will
His face touched the glass
His fingers traced
The path of the water
The lines on his face

I will remember you In this way As sure as the night divides the day As sure as the sun goes down.

The sun goes down

The sun goes down

The sun goes down
