

Shane Barnard, Prodigal Me

what have i done to get me here? unraveled and undone, i need my father what have i done? i've followed my feet to nowhere now i'm here! as i ran, i can run no more prodigal me

the mountains to the west, i know they laugh at me they know i'm scared to cross and leave this life i lead oh my pride! i give you up a barter for my freedom what will they think as i come stumbling down to join their lives?

i need to cross this mountain and find my way home i seek no greater fortune, rescue me oh unmerciful divide be merciful tonight show me the other side
prodigal me

the mountains to the east, they've swallowed my beloved this house completely incomplete, where is my mortar? where did he go? he followed his feet to nowhere please come home! you've done me no wrong each evening i look down that road i hope and i wait for you and my servants they look down that road we watch and we pray for you master, master, who's that man stumbling down that road? could it be the one? could it be? could it be?
master, master, it's Your son coming home to join our lives!

i'm looking down this mountain, i see my way home there is no greater fortune, i believe! oh unmerciful divide you laugh at me no more oh i've reached the other side!

could i be the one? could i be? could i be?
Father, Father, we're Your sons coming home to join Your life we've finally crossed this mountain, and found our way home there is no greater fortune than Jesus oh how merciful is our God who gave His only Son! oh we worship You tonight!
