

Shelby Sifers, A Happy Love Song

now, i wasn't sure at first but there's a bounce in my step today and if i were drunk enough, i'd tell you i've loved you since the third grade when you handed me a cupcake, remember on your eleventh birthday, remember and i reached in for a kiss from you but you shrunk back - ew now you kiss me every morning and every afternoon
and often in between them, it's what i'd like you to do you're driving in your beat up car stuck in rush hour and i'm on the phone with you saying, "i guess the slow lane is just awful slow today" but you'll be here by morning yes you'll drive the whole night through just to meet me on the front lawn
i've been inking up my fingers busy writing you a letter and i'll stick it in the doorframe "i love you, please stay with me, stay with me so you can kiss me every morning
and every afternoon
and often in between them,
and if i ever find another, well, i'd still love you too and if you find another woman, well, i'd move next door to you and i'd be looking out my window every single god damn day just crossing all my fingers, hoping you'll come out to play
