

Sigrid, Blue

run away, run away I was in between a moment and the next searching for the best couldn't wait, couldn't wait I was busy getting over where I'd been and take what's coming in and I wonder, am I good enough, am I strong enough or old enough for this and then it hits you hard in the chest, it doesn't really mean a thing right now it's when they tell you that it's serious, it all starts flashing by and you suddenly realize you're out of control oh how I wish that we were anywhere else but in the clouds when life comes crashing down I fall into blue, blue, blue, blue, blue blue, blue, blue, blue, blue, blue run away, run away, nothing else to do than put it in a box, pretend that we've moved on

and I wonder, am I good enough, am I strong enough or old enough for this
and then it hits you hard in the chest, it doesn't really mean a thing right now

it's when they tell you that it's serious, it all starts flashing by
and you suddenly realize you're out of control
oh how I wish that we were anywhere else but in the clouds
when life comes crashing down
I fall into blue, blue, blue, blue, blue
blue, blue, blue, blue, blue, blue