

Silence, Drive

I still remember your hands against the wheel
The burning rubber
The melting steel
The twilight veil on your face, dreamlike and unreal
The moonlit highway paved with stardust
The steamy windows
covered with lust I'd do it all again
and so would you,
I trust

Let's take a ride, love
The night is still young We could drive straight to oblivion
and make really happy all the slanderous tongues

Take me all the way
'til we rise above
the dreary fields of hate, the winding streets of love

'Til we rise above

Grab the steering wheel
My heart is yours to steal
