

Silent Majority, Nautilus

there are times and there are places we thought this would never die this thing between you and I we sat and talked about it in the diner late at night cokes with no ice me with iced tea and nowadays it's just three this plate of fries me and a couple of guys you ain't around there was a smile you must have have misplaced it with this cruelty kind of a grin went to the show and screamed "we can win" and then came home and realized we weren't in the game at a all we're all destined to fall sometimes the question is how far how fast how soon 'til you make up your mind this time we all go through life with a system of doubts which one will you choose before you turn and walk away we always choose make up your mind step up and take control of it you'll be glad you did it there was a game plan you went and erased it smashed it into bits and then you misplaced it how far how fast how soon 'til you make up your mind
