

Silje Nergaard, Japanese Blue

Can't count the hours, blame the miles
And say they keep me from your smile
For you are here, no oceans lie
Between my lover's arms and I

I see your smile but where are you
Why won't you dare to need me too
I would bring you joy to light the way
A ray of sun to thaw your days

Please let me through
I don't ask much, but the slightest touch
of Japanese blue, I beg of you
My life is such
It needs a touch of Japanese blue

I see that life has taken toll
Your shattered dreams I can't make whole
But let me through and i will stay
Close by your side to comfort you

Please let me through
I don't ask much, but the slightest touch
of Japanese blue, I beg of you
My life is such
It needs a touch of Japanese blue