

Silverstein, You're All I Have

i wake up in the afternoon, empty walls make up the room, and im wishing for one thing, to give myself the strength to keep myself alive long enough to make sure you don't try to turn out anything like me another fraud, another fake don't pretend you're not the one who's wrong you're keepin me sane, when I'm feelin alone i wield my heart and my flesh and bones don't leave me to die by myself i can't live without you sunlight streams in through the blinds calling me from these confines there's only so many more days until you cast away, from ever seeing me they wont understand, they'll never see, they way you medicate my head without you here im left for dead
you're keepin me sane, when I'm feelin alone
without you here
you're all i have,
in a world that judges long before it sees you're all i have,
in a place that hates me and only wants to push me down, and now im forsaken pass the point that'll end up break me i wont be fine your all mistaken don't pretend your not the one who's wrong don't you pretend its gonna be okay don't lie and say it's better off this way don't you pretend, don't you pretend (don't pretend your not the one who's wrong)
dont lie and say you're not the one who's wrong don't pretend
you're keepin me sane, when I'm feelin alone
i can't live without you here
(without you here)
you're keepin me sane, when I'm feelin alone (i wont live without you) you're not the one who's wrong don't leave me to die when I'm feelin alone
i can't live without you
