Sinead O'Connor, War

Until the philosophy, Which holds one race superior And another inferior, Is finally and permanently Discredited and abandoned, Everywhere is war.

Until there is no longer first class Or second class citizens of any nation. Until the color of a man? skin, Is of no more significance then The color of his eyes, I've got to say "war".

That until the basic human rights, Are equally guaranteed to all, Without regard to race, I'll say "war"

Until that day the dream of lasting peace, World-citizenship and the rule of International morality will remain Just a fleeting illusion to be pursued, But never obtained. And everywhere is war.

Until the ignoble and unhappy regime Which holds all of us through, Child-abuse, yeah, child-abuse yeah, Sub-human bondage has been toppled, Utterly destroyed, Everywhere is war.

War in the east, War in the west, War up north, War down south, There is war, And the rumors of war.

Until that day, There is no continent, Which will know peace.

Children, children.
