

Sirenia, One By One

There's a river that runs along
Your fading hope and darkened days to come
The lights are fading out once more

I see you falter so lost and blind
I know a shadow still lingers in in your mind
But I can't lead you on, not this time

I've been dreaming for far too long
And my dreams all break one by one
I'm still standing, still facing the fall
Will I give in the distant calls

I've been watching your crumbling walls
I've endured a thousand tears or more
In a frozen moment of time, I see you fall

Only memories remain of you now
You've given in to darkness and to doubt
You couldn't find the strenght to cast
The demons out