

Sister Seven, Say Good - Bye

Candles burning all the shadows flicker flashing
The sound of grace always reminds me of you
I hold myself now there's no one else here to hold me
I want to make it through got to make it through
All the king's horses and all the king's men
Couldn't keep me from believing
I leave a letter on the pillow of your empty bed
She's holding you but this much is true

We said I'll never say good-bye
Too much to ever say good-bye to you
I'll never say good-bye

Too much to ever say good-bye to you

Happy ever after never comes to pass
But all the while we were ever dreaming
The taste of someone new and wash it all away
That's the human way we push it all away but we said

I'll never say good-bye
Too much to ever say good-bye to you

I'll never say good-bye
