

Sketch, Hollow

Doubting myself
Consumed by regret
Feeling hollow
Hollow

Doubting all I am
Doubting my whole life
With the face of fear inside
In myself I can't confide

Always falling short
All these mistakes are my own

And I cry out
And I will see the truth in me
But all these words I wrote in vain
From my own thoughts I take the Blame

Regret consumes me
Can't see past this self
Though I want to feel this pain
I need to to escape

I'm so unconcerned
With the love of my pain

And I cry out
And I will see truth in me
But all these words I wrote in vain
From my own thoughts I take the blame

With all the doubt and regret that consumes
I'm forced to feel this hollow

And I cry out
And I will see the truth in me
But all these words I wrote in vain
From my own thoughts I take the blame

All this blame