Slapstick, The Park

I remember sitting in the sandbox And I realized it was how life's supposed to be when I look back and see So beautiful to me, so beautiful Holding hands and painting pictures Playgrounds and friends were the only necessities when I look back and see So beautiful to me, so beautiful It's time to start being kids again Where hopes are strong, where eyes are bright To erase the prejudice, to no walls put up inside of life I don't see why it's so hard to get along these days It didn't seem that hard when we were kids I wanna be a kid again, I want to play in the park when I look back and see So beautiful to me, so beautiful
