

Slash, C'est La Vie (feat. Myles Kennedy and The

There's a photograph she keeps
That she looks to when she's low
A distant chance a fading dream
Far beyond this broken home

She's alone
She's alone
She's afraid to run

From the one
That she loves
But she's had enough

Lines have been crossed again

C'est la vie
Don't look back
And don't let go
An angel's dream
Fans the flame
That keeps her whole

C'est la vie
If There's salvation down the road
Heaven waits for you
Beyond the hell you've known

Beyond the hell you've known

One more battle wound to hide
One more nightmare to forget
One more victim in disguise
So much shame you'd never guess

She's alone
She's alone
She's afraid to run

From the one
That she loves
But she's had enough
Time to move on again

C'est la vie
Don't look back
And don't let go
An angel's dream
Fans the flame
That keeps you whole

C'est la vie
If There's salvation down the road
Heaven waits for you
Beyond the hell you've known

Beyond the hell you've known

Princes turn to monsters
When they lose their way you know
They kiss you in condolence
After only throwing stones

C'est la vie
Don't look back

And don't let go
An angel's dream
Fans the flame
That keeps you whole

C'est la vie
If there's salvation down the road

Heaven waits for you
Beyond the hell you've known
Beyond the hell you've known

Heaven waits for you
Heaven waits for you