

Smashing Pumpkins, Geek U.S.A.

Lover, lover, let's pretend we're born as innocents,
Cast into the world with apple eyes.
To wish, wish dangerous, my dear delirious,
To try and leave the rest of us behind.

Shot full of diamonds and a million years,
The disappointed disappear as if they were never here.

Kiss, kiss all of this, the hiss that we had missed,
And understand what can't be understood.
Sear those thoughts of me, alone and unhappy.
I never liked me anyway.

If by chance or circumstance, we should fall, don't be too sad.
Shot full of diamonds and a million years,
The disappointed disappear like they were never here.

In a dream, we are connected.
Siamese twins at the wrist.
That's when I knew we had been forsaken, expelled from paradise.
I can't believe them when they say it's all right.

Words can't define what I feel inside.
Who needs them?
Caught with this virus of my mind,
I give in to my disease of my needs,
To my disease of my needs.

She really loves to break, her dad says it's okay.
She really loves to break, and give it all away.
Her mom says she's a flake, what more can she be?
She really needs to break, and give us all away.

She gave it all away,
She gave it all away,
She gave it all away,
We really love the U.S.A.
