Snitch, Down In Flames

try to save yourself from all the things you really hate but it's too late they're all around you getting closer every single day there's no escape all the doors are closed cannot find the strength used it up now it's all gone where will you go you just don't know you're hiding here you're going down you hear the sound it's spinning round you're falling fast you'll never last now you're on your own 'cause all your friends have given up you're too much you think about how much you suck now your sanity is fked nothing left to save thought you hated them now they hate you back one by one they let you down