

Snitch, The Night She Died

You're waiting for the day when you are free again counting every second of every minute but you've got two more years to live here in this cell in the city jail of nowhere counting every hour of the day lying in your cell and you pray you killed her her house one night as she came home from work you didn't even know her name she was a sweet and innocent young pretty girl and you killed her just for fun

It's getting dark outside you're tired so you lay your head down on your pillow close your eyes and try to sleep every night you dream the same dream dream about the girl and her screams see her pretty face and her shining hair she had so many dreams and plans you killed her in her house one night when the light was alright and no one could hear her scream

she was a sweet and innocent young pretty girl
and you killed her just for fun