

Someday Never, Pretty Eyes

My eyes might move
My body is stuck on edge to
Patiently predict if your next hit prevails
Let's dim these lights a little more
So I can watch you burn a tad bit better
A taste of pleasure, would it hurt to ask for more

I never wanted more
Than just to watch you fade away
I'm still stuck in this world
This state of mind that still believes in fate
I'm holding back, but holding on to what I have
I'll remember you for this
You're nothing but pretty eyes
You're nothing but pretty eyes

From something smooth
To rough around the edge
You sucked me in so deep
No rope could reach to save me
You've turned out the light
You're so predictable
Yet so impossible
It's impossible to figure you out

I never wanted more
Than just to watch you fade away
I'm still stuck in this world
This state of mind that still believes in fate
I'm holding back, but holding on to what I have
I'll remember you for this
You're nothing but pretty eyes

Therapy to my broken bones
I'm hoping for a miracle
Yet loving this ride oh
It's your name at the top of my lungs

And I'm telling you this one last time
Just close your mouth and eyes
And if you open up your ears
You'll hear your heart's in sync with mine
And every time it skips
Your smile's what fills the miss inside
And the hardest part of moving on
The hardest part is knowing you'll be gone

I never wanted more
Than just to watch you fade away
I'm still stuck in this world
That believes in fate
I'm holding back, but holding on to what I have
I'll remember you for this
You're nothing but pretty eyes
