

Someday Never, To You This May Concern

it's too late for a goodnight too late to find that light breaking through this darkened sky I'm thinking that's another day and one by one honesty and trusting go their separate ways and break away so next time, if we mean something, keep in mind you'll turn the other way and break that line let's set this mood on fire and rise above the flame that's pushing me away I'm asking one desire - to rise above this flame that's pushing me away

this body bag is filling slowly with every single word you've said but it's every word that's shot me dead I have this memory of perfect we're so perfect all the time or is that just my mind disregarding all those tempted lies you're wasting up my time my life...

out of the many places and all the million faces I fell in love with yours

Let's set this mood on fire
and rise above the flame that's pushing me away
I'm asking one desire - to rise above this flame
that's pushing me away
Tomorrow's just another day So I'll dream away
I just haven't found my place