Something For Kate, A Fool's History Pt. 1

Everything's understood and nothing more to know You sleep by the river and walk yourself home You picked a perfect reason put back on your feet That shows you the way back...

To triggers and loopholes in the back of your mind Barefoot and walking on the still morning light Got last one chance to make it all all-right So come and sit next to me and I'll tell you everything Another fool's history...

Innocent bystanders captured in the frame With unfinished business And don't show on your face Standing in the doorway between decisions un-made But you'll never know, you'll never know

So come on now, leave all your silence and crime And you and me, we can stay quiet one time We'll throw open the windows and turn out the lights And we're laying here listening, but not telling everything Some other fools history...

So come on now Come on now So come on now Come on now...

To triggers and loopholes in the back of your mind Barefoot and walking on the still morning light I got one last match to set it all alight

But it's not what it seems to be And nobody's listening To another fool's history Was blindfolded memory We'll just deny everything The cause of your miseries Never deciphering You're heart slowly whispering You think you've seen everything You think you've seen everything...