

Something For Kate, Light At The End Of The Tunnel

Feels like you're coming apart and entertain the thought that you're out of things to say and you haven't even started you haven't even started

You're gonna have to find the words to put on the page and get around the corner get around the corner where nothing is the way the way it was before you're left with just these after thoughts to keep you warm

and when all the sunlight in your eyes feels forgotten
Is there light at the end of this tunnel?
And it feels like we're drowning, sinking to the bottom
Is there light at the end of this tunnel?
If the only thing to do now is just start running for a light at the end of this tunnel

Sometimes anything just breaks your heart up and you hold your arms to keep day and night apart so this is never ending nothing is ending turn back the clock till the clock is no more now time means nothing, time can't touch you it's nowhere to the start and nowhere to end but tomorrow somehow finds its way to us again

And when all the sunlight in your eyes feels forgotten
Is there a light at the end of this tunnel and we feel like we're drowning, sinking to the bottom is there a light at the end of this tunnel and the only thing to do now is just start, just start running for the light at the end of this tunnel
For The Light