

Sono, Since You're Gone

I'm sleeping and I'm dreaming of you again
Wishing that I could feel your warmth again
It's been so long since you've been gone and left my life

Since you're gone, since you're gone.....

I'm Walking down the streets that we used to take Still laughing 'bout the jokes that you used to make
Sitting alone by the telephone but you don't call

Since you're gone, since you're gone.....

Playing all the songs that we used to hear
The scent of your perfume won't disappear
You're back at your friends it don't make sense, but I let you go

Still thinking 'bout who's wrong or who is right
Still wondering but I'm too tired to fight
Paid my dues but I had to loose as time goes by

Since you're gone, since you're gone.....

I'm sleeping and I'm dreaming of you again
Wishing that I could feel your warmth again
It's been so long since you've been gone and left my life

Since you're gone, since you're gone.....
